

A sterile surgical environment is just as important for animals as it is for humans. Our equine surgical suite was designed specifically for horses. All personnel “scrubbed in” for the procedure wear caps, masks, sterile gowns, and sterile gloves. The surgical site is carefully draped to create a barrier against bacteria. In this case the horse’s entire hind limb is covered for surgical transaction of a ligament near his fetlock that was causing painful constriction of the tendons.

