

Gastrointestinal ultrasonography made it possible to quickly diagnose a small intestinal intussusception as the cause of this patient's colic. A portion of intestine has become entrapped within an adjacent section, in the manner of a collapsed telescope. This creates a classic "target" or "bull's eye" appearance.

