

Upper airway endoscopy reveals arytenoid chondritis: inflammation and proliferation of the cartilages that normally close to protect the airway when the horse swallows.

